Reading Your Map

Fill out the worksheet below in groups

- 1 What is the title of your map?
- 2 Who is the cartographer or organisation that made your map?
- 3 What year was your map published? Is that different from when the data was collected?
- 4 Does your map have an edition or is part of a set?
- 5 What is the scale of your map? What unit(s) is the scale bar? How is it communicated to you?
- 6 Is the projection listed and if so, what is it? Can you guess if not?
- 7 Are there any data sources noted on your map? If so, what?
- 8 Is there a legend? What features are depicted? What symbols do they use?
- 9 What is the primary dataset? Does it have variables?
- 10 What secondary or base map data is used? What work does that do to contextualize the primary data?
- 11 What labels are used? Are they in different type or capitalization? How are they positioned?
- 12 Does your map use graticules or grids?
- 13 Are there any elements specific to your map genre that you don't know what they are?

Deconstructing Your Map

In groups discuss the following (you're allowed to use laptops to search!)

- 1 Tell us about the purpose of the map – in what scenario or context do you think it should be used?
- 2 Tell us more about the cartographer or organisation that made the map – what purpose might they have in investing in this production?
- 3 What languages are on this map – are there languages that have been left off which people speak in the area?
- 4 What is not on this map? What kinds of information have been left off?
- 5 What kinds of knowledge might be important for this map, but are perhaps unmappeable?
